Response to Arguments

1. This office action is in response to Applicant's amendment dated Nov.21, 2003.
2. The Official Notice used is capable of instant and unquestionable demonstration as being well-known by the application of 2 dictionaries, which are capable of instant and unquestionable demonstration as being well-known in the business art and were used as explicit evidence in the explanation of the applied Official Notice. Applicant has chosen not to mention the evidence of dictionaries and the cross trading definition found therein. No reason is given for this omission. Examiner respectfully requests the Applicant to fully address the relevance of the dictionaries' definitions of cross trading, which Examiner sees as being of paramount importance, with respect to the claims which were rejected by Official Notice and cross trading.
3. In re Eynde is materially factually distinct such that its holding does not apply.
4. To argue that "further trades" in the context of an anonymous trading system such as the New York Stock Exchange or NASDAQ are not well known is to ignore the voluminous stock transactions on the various stock exchanges for at least decades. Applicant will make no such admission.
5. No matter what trading system is chosen, including Applicant's, ultimately any original anonymity between the seller and buyer is eliminated and their identities are ultimately known by a third party or third parties to the transaction upon the settlement of accounts as required for the consummation of the transaction. Therefore, Togher et al, which fits this description as well, would apply to one of ordinary skill in the business art.

6. On page 8, "substantially the same price" alters the meaning of "same price" in claim 11. Explanation is required.

7. Objections to the formal drawing that are to be corrected:

-fig 1, 2, 4, etc. have trading agent as 10 for each agent implying they are the same.

Differentiating the elements is required if they are not identical trading agents as was done for brokers in the figures.

-fig 1,2,3, etc. should have bi-directional arrows where applicable to clarify enablement where two way communication/path exist so as to distinguish this from one way communication/path.

-eliminate 15, 20 on the amended fig 13.
